The djembe originally comes from West Africa. It’s a big drum, between 58 cm and 63 cm high, that you play with your hands.

The didgeridoo is a wind instrument. The Aborigines, the indigenous Australians, invented the didgeridoo about 1,500 years ago. It’s a long tube and it can measure between one and three metres in length.
The sitar is a stringed instrument. It is a common instrument in Indian and Pakistani music. The Beatles’ singer George Harrison learnt to play it. You can hear it in The Beatles' songs, ‘Norwegian Wood’ and ‘Within You Without You’. 