William Barton is a famous didgeridoo player. He was born in a small town in the Australian desert in 1981. His uncle taught him to play the didgeridoo when he was a boy. He likes to mix traditional Aboriginal music with Western music. He started to tour around the world when he was 15 years old. He is a soloist, but he has also played with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra! In 2008, he played at the opening ceremony for the Beijing Olympic Games, in China.
Anoushka Shankar is the daughter of the famous Indian sitar player, Ravi Shankar. Ravi Shankar played with The Beatles and brought sitar music to the West in the 1960s and 1970s. His daughter, Anoushka, was born in London in 1981. She started to learn the sitar when she was 10 years old. When she was 14, she played in concerts with her father. Since then she has played with classical, jazz, and rock musicians, including Sting and Eric Clapton. She also performs traditional sitar music for Indian and Western audiences.