An introduction to formal emails

The English-speaking world often operates at a semi-formal level. Language is friendly and welcoming, but with some formal expressions. However, when dealing with people outside the company and people that the writer has never met, formal English is used. Formal emails are also used in business transactions: purchasing, ordering, booking, apologizing, etc. In certain larger companies, formal writing is frequently used in emails sent among colleagues, especially when corresponding with people at different levels of the organization.

The following are some guidelines to help you identify and use formal email writing style.

Openings and closings

There are a number of common openings and closings to an email which will show you whether the author is being formal, informal, or semi-formal.

Contractions

When writing formal emails, do not use contractions, such as I’m, he’d, you’ll, etc.

Formal I am writing to ask if you have seen the news from Jo.
Semi-formal / Informal I’m writing to ask if you’ve seen the news from Jo.

Modal verbs

To make requests and give instructions, formal English frequently uses modal verbs: would, could etc. However, note that modal verbs are also used in this way in informal and semi-formal English.

Formal Would you be able to deliver the report by tomorrow?
Semi-formal / Informal Can you deliver the report by tomorrow?

Formal Could you ask Pierre to come to the meeting?
Semi-formal / Informal Can you ask Pierre to come to the meeting?

Questions

In preference to asking a direct question, formal emails frequently use indirect questions.

Formal I wonder if you would like to join us for dinner on Tuesday.
Informal Do you want to join us for dinner on Tuesday?

Formal Could you see if the components have been ordered yet?
Informal Have the components been ordered yet?

In addition to this, offers are often made using would.

Formal Would you like to see the new prototype?
Informal Do you want to see the new prototype?

Opening sentences

After the greeting, English emails normally begin with an opening sentence. Common opening sentences for a formal email are as follows.

• I hope that all is well with you.
• I was just emailing to request some assistance. (The past tense is frequently used to make a sentence more polite.)
• Thank you for your email of 12 March.

Emails that omit this opening sentence are usually official correspondence between governments and individuals, or formal demands for payment, etc.

Formal and informal vocabulary

Formal emails tend to use slightly different vocabulary to informal emails. Informal emails often use phrasal verbs and sound more like standard spoken English.

Formal I would like to request some assistance.
Informal I’d like to ask for some help.

Formal Once I have received the information from our suppliers, I will reply to Mr Braun’s email.
Informal After I hear back from the suppliers, I’ll get back to Mr Braun.

Certain terms have a formal or informal equivalent. Try not to mix informal and formal styles in the same email.
